

More information on CPRB:

The Civilian Police Review Board has the power to receive, investigate, and recommend resolutions of non-criminal complaints filed with it, alleging misconduct by officers and non-sworn employees of the Cleveland Division of Police, when the alleged misconduct is directed toward persons who are not an officer or employee.

Investigations of alleged non-criminal police misconduct are conducted by the independent Office of Professional Standards, which reports to the CPRB. The CPRB receives and reviews the investigations completed by the OPS. Following the OPS investigation, the CPRB holds a public hearing and recommends a resolution for each of the complaints.

Members of the Civilian Police Review Board have a unique role with respect to reviewing the conduct of Division of Police employees and CPRB members have been entrusted to conduct their work in a professional, fair and impartial manner.

Compensation for Civilian Police Review Board members, a part-time position, is $8,963 a year. The Board meets weekdays 1-2 times each month, and may hold additional special meetings. Meetings can last as long as four hours or more.